WIDER ROADS

The emergency road work which the Provincial Government is gradually getting developed throughout the province, payment for which is to be shared in by the Dominion Government, has been carefully planned by Mr. R. W. Bruhn, the Minister of Public Works. The fact of the matter is that since this programme was outlined it has been a question of making the necessary preparations for camps for the workers and devising the details of the plan. However, a start has been made and the hope is that it will only be a question of a few weeks before the whole relief plan, as devised, is in full swing.

Mr. Bruhn and the engineering staff of his department have been passing through busy times. It is no mean exploit to work out such a scheme as is now in course of being put into practice for unemployment relief. The opportunity which this plan offers, however, possesses many advantages. Not the least of these is the chance of effecting such permanent road improvements as will be in line with the continually growing traffic. Here, indeed, with the Federal Government giving substantial assistance, is the opportunity of making wider roads, and thus not only helping to provide employment but making for greater safety for the travelling public.

In the foregoing regard some remarks are pertinent about the work which is being started on the Island highways. The first installments of the relief workers are now engaged on their task. The proposal made by the Government is that the driving surfaces on the East and West Saanich Roads should be widened by three feet on either side of these highways. In this connection we would strongly recommend that the Government broaden its policy by making the widening process five feet on either side of these highways. That would allow ample room for cars passing, prevent motorists from being forced off the driving surface, and generally add to safety on these roads. The same applies to the Malahat, a drive where accidents have been too frequent. The opportunity that has come with the expenditure of Federal funds for British Columbia's highways should be taken advantage of to insure wider roads. The growth in traffic fully warrants such an improvement, and, as far as the highways on the Island are concerned, the three mentioned in the immediate vicinity of Victoria are easily the most important, as they carry a large volume of traffic and of a constantly expanding character.

The proposal for wider roads than at present planned is put forward with full appreciation of what the Provincial Government is prepared to do. Within a short time the demand for wider highways will become an imperative one. On that account the opportunity should be seized upon now, when the money has been made available for unemployment relief. In a few years the likelihood is that no such outlays will be expedient, and it may be a very difficult matter to persuade any Government that it would be justified in any unusual road expenditures.

In respect to wider roads, British Columbia has come to a point where, in the interests of safety, it must follow the example set in many other places. With the road outlays now available there is nothing to stop the suggestion we have advanced being adopted. The programme, if amplified in this particular, will well repay the expenditure involved. It is recommended to Mr. Bruhn for his favorable consideration as one which will appeal to the entire motoring public who are anxious that every possible safeguard should be provided against accident.

SALARIES AND ECONOMIES

The select committee of Parliament that investigated the finances of the Canadian National Railways during the last session at Ottawa brought to light many interesting features affecting expenditure on the nationally-owned system. The recommendations of that committee, which were approved by Parliament, show very clearly that economies of a drastic variety are essential. A small beginning has been made in putting such economies into effect, but a great deal remains to be done in that direction, including the elimination of a competitive service on the triangular run—Victoria—Vancouver—Seattle—which the committee ascertained had occasioned a loss of nearly $600,000 to the C.N.R. in less than nine months of operation. That loss has been very considerably enhanced since the report was furnished to Parliament, and even then it did not take into consideration either interest or sinking fund on the investment of over $6,000,000 which the state-owned railway made in the three vessels used on the coastal service.

There is another aspect of expenditures that appear lavish in connection with the Canadian National Railways. The president, Sir Henry Thornton, receives, by contract, a salary of $75,000 annually. In addition he receives a salary of $5,000 from the Central Vermont Railway; $5,000 from the Grand Trunk Western, other salaries and incidentals amounting to $10,000 annually, while he is given an allowance for a house by the directors of the system amounting to $20,000 a year and is provided with $25,000 per annum for expenses. In connection with the latter item there is no rendering of accounts. Thus the total paid to Sir Henry is $140,000 a year, a sum which, in these times, must be regarded as exorbitant. In addition it developed, in answer to a question in the House of Commons at the last session of Parliament, that there are thirty-five officials of the company drawing upwards of $15,000 a year.

A coterie of the press of the Dominion has been backing the Canadian National Railways through thick and thin and advancing what amounts to a theory that Sir Henry Thornton controls its destinies by some divine right and can do no wrong. No one has ever accused him of wrong, but he has been criticized for an exaggerated optimism and a spendthrift policy in directing the affairs of the Canadian National system. At a time when governmental economies are the order of the day in many lands, when an example has been set by the highest in the Empire, it would seem the part of logic for a first step in the reduction of Canadian National Railways to come from the president himself and the higher officials of the system. Nothing has been heard, so far, of what sacrifices are being made in this particular.

The facts we have printed should prove an eyeopener to the taxpayers of the Dominion. Where economies are imperative they should begin at the top and work downwards. Sir Henry and other high officials of the C.N.R. are worthy of their full guerdon. It is quite another question what that guerdon should be in the light of present-day economic conditions and with consideration of the fact that the taxpayers of the Dominion are shouldering a burden in the Canadian National system which is far greater than this country should have to bear.

THE HARMSWORTH CUP

It is to the credit of sportsmanship generally in the United States that the fiasco of the Harmsworth Cup races at Detroit should be roundly condemned. The actual winner, in fact the only survivor left to take part in the third heat, can acquire neither honor nor satisfaction in the trophy having been retained in the United States. The honors of the event go to Mr. Kaye Don, the British challenger, even though his craft was sunk. He won the first heat because Miss England II was the best of the three boats entered in the race and because of admirable steersmanship. In the second heat his chief opponent, Mr. Gar Wood, beat the starting gun by ten seconds and Mr. Kaye Don got away two seconds later, also beating the starting gun. Technically both contestants were disqualified and rightly so, unless the officials had taken a more broad-minded view of the happening and ordered the heat to be contested again.

On technical grounds there is no criticism to be offered of the fiasco into which the event developed. Mr. Kaye Don played in hard luck because he had an opponent who was determined to get the better of him by means not according to Hoyle. Mr. Wood made no secret of the fact that his anxiety to start was premeditated. Mr. Kaye Don seeing him starting followed suit. Seconds comined in a race between such speedy boats. There is no reason to believe that the British challenger would have beaten the gun if his rival had not done so first. The bright aspect of the happening is that no one in the United States attaches the smallest blame to Mr. Kaye Don. It is Mr. Gar Wood's reputation that has suffered, and perhaps to an irretrievable extent. He is an admirable pilot, but his sportsmanship will hereafter always rest under a cloud of suspicion.

CAPTAIN ROBERT PAMPHLET

Seafaring men and all sportsmen in British Columbia and Canada, who honor the traditions of the sea, will regret to hear of the death of Captain Robert Pamphlet. He was a native son of Victoria and was engaged in the marine life of the coast for many years. He came into international prominence through his rescue of the steam schooner Kaoba off the Oregon coast in 1924. When engaged in command of a vessel carrying a cargo of liquor from British Columbia to Mexico he heard the call for help. He is a call which no seaman worthy of the name can fail to respond to on the moment. He rescued the vessel in distress and took its crew aboard the Peschawa, his own vessel. Then he ventured close to American waters and hailed a coast-guard cutter in order to tranship the rescued passengers. Because it was claimed that he was within the twelve-mile limit his vessel with its liquor cargo was seized. He was tried and sentenced to two years imprisonment, and the act of mercy which he performed to seamen in distress failed to count in his favor. He was the victim of a technicality for having followed the traditions of the sea.

It is probable that the experiences of Captain Pamphlet while in prison hastened his death. He had been in ill health ever since his release. There have been few instances in modern annals of the sea in which so much sympathy went out to the captain of a vessel who did his duty, and, as a consequence, suffered imprisonment. From the viewpoint entertained in British lands Captain Pamphlet deserved every praise and his memory will be honored wherever the best traditions of the sea are held in respect.

UNKNOWN VOICE GIVEN OVATION

J. Galloway Applauded by Burns Club During Joseph Hinton's Address

HERE can be no question about the quality, finish and comfort of the plates sold at this office, because they are made in our own laboratory under the direct supervision of Dr. Coultaas himself. The economy of our prices you can easily judge . . . just ask us for an estimate . . . and see how much our low prices save you!

A little known Island singer who should soon day make his mark in much bigger musical world was heard by Burns Club members who Tuesday night had the opportunity to listen to James Galloway, of Cedar District, in the several groups of song which he gave in connection with Joseph Hinton's address on "The Influence of the Reformation and the Renaissance on the Art of Voice Production and Singing."

Given at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, this recital, which had the additional assistance of Mrs. Ruby Moore, violinist, and Mr. Reddick, in a simple manner. John Hinton, the president, expressed the view that the club had already achieved some thing to be proud of in introducing such talent as Mr. Galloway's to a Victoria audience. The young singer, who possessed a splendid natural voice, with fine resonance of tone, his singing, dramatic potentialities, was enthusiastically applauded.

VOCAL OFFERINGS

His numbers were: "Scottish Emigrant Farewell" (H. me), Cowan's "Blue Bonnets Over the Border," the martial, hammer-like character of which was easily with the group; "The Lark Ascending," voice, although his range is called for; the marching "Hebridean Song" (Mrs. Kennedy Fraser), the traditional "Turn Ye to Me," which was interpreted with fine sympathy of expression, the tone also being particularly steady and of uniform timbre; the rousing "Lochnagar," which was repeated in response to persistent applause; the dignified "Hallelujah" "Aria," and the fine "Ode to Joy." The "Ode to Joy" which is perfectly suited to this type of voice. A little abandon, a little more variety of expression, a little more clarity of articulation and Mr. Galloway could easily surpass most of the voices of this type in public recognition. He has had a magnificent equipment in the matter of power, range, tonal resonance, breath control and good phrasing.

Mrs. Moore's numbers, played with authority and good tone, were: the Bach air on the G string and Handel's sonata in A. Mr. Hinton, who acted as accompanist to both singer and violinist, also played a solo or two, and sang on the piano to illustrate points in his lecture about the character of early music, the development of simple themes into operatic arias, and other features.

SCHOLARLY PAPER

The speaker showed erudition in his subject, his history of music even extending to the present, and in arriving into the ancient Greek. He stated, however, that the serious study of voice production and singing began about 1000 A.D. Towards the end of that period of European history, generally called the Middle Ages under the iron and bloody yoke of warring kings and barons gradually gave place to a quickening of spirit in which freedom from tyranny, liberty of speech and action were demanded.

When the Turks captured Constantinople in 1453, Greek scholars fled to Florence. This was a momentous event, for these fugitives opened anew the science, art and literature of an old civilization and indirectly stimulated intercourse with still more Western Europe, whose students braved the hardships and dangers of Alpine passes and pirate infested seas in their quest for light. Patrician societies and scholars generally embraced the new learning with zest. No English general, until he had taken the Italian tour. The passion for reviving the glories of Greek and Italian literature eventually affected the art of music. Groping endeavor brought about a new style in music, the composition of the first opera and the study of the art of voice production and singing.

HIGH STANDARD

In this connection Mr. Hinton mentioned the early recognition of the close association of fine speech and music. During the Renaissance period a high standard of excellence in speech was the basis of music making special headway, the former based on the ancient modes and scales, while popular music was made up of simple melodic phrases. Henry VIII, James I and other monarchs were fond of music which reached a fine expression in the operas of Palestrina, Handel, Monteverdi, Puccini, and the long list of nineteenth and twentieth century composers.

An amusing part of Mr. Hinton's talk was that which he traced to the Scottish sources the Italianized names of some of last century's best-known singers, a notable instance being the renowned Campobello, whom the speaker had personally known in his brilliant youth as plain "Mr. Campbell."

A very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Hinton, Mrs. Moore and Mr. Halloway was passed with applause by the audience.

AT COURTEEN

Friday morning an early start will be made with breakfast at Cameron Lake. Continuing the caravan will reach Courtenay for luncheon, where the members of the Boards of Trade in that vicinity will be conferred with. In the afternoon the trip will be continued to Alberni and from there the visitors will go to Sproat Lake and other points returning to the Somass Hotel, at Port Alberni, for a dinner, at which West Coast bodies of the Board of Trade of that place.

A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Hinton, Mrs. Moore and Mr. Halloway was passed with applause by the audience.

RETURN TRIP

Saturday morning will call for luncheon at Qualicum, where the various affiliated organizations will join the Victorians. The return will be made to the city during the afternoon.

President R. W. Mayhew impressed upon the meeting yesterday that the trip was one for attending goods will be secured in so short a time, and we are deeply concerned because of the amount of distress which will be unrelieved in consequence," a representative of the committee said.

"Several weeks have been devoted to the organization of the affiliated organizations, and we have led to believe their needs would be supplied. But failure to raise a sum sufficient to supplement their earnings, through relief work, in full measure must lead to a continuance of suffering and hardship."

"We are convinced there are sufficient kind-hearted and generous people in Victoria to supply unemployed workers' needs, but unfortunately those whose means would permit them to give without great personal sacrifice, fail to realize the gravity of the situation."

"Our appeal is made to all who can, to lose no time in sending generous donations to campaign headquarters, View and Broad Streets, telephone Garden 1725, or the city treasurer, E. C. Smith, City Hall."

STRIKE SITUATION SHOWS NO CHANGEESTEVAN, Sept. 9.—The strike which has held the local mining operations in its grip since midnight on Monday, remained apparently tranquil and undisturbed tonight.A conference of mine operators this afternoon brought no change in the situation, and the local executive of the Miners' Association of Canada had taken no action. The operators refused to divulge the results of the conference.Both sides remained firm in their contentions, the union to accept no alternative but a direct conference with the mine operators and the operators in their efforts to recognize the union because of its connections

'FRONT PAGE' HAS BRILLIANT CAST

A. Menjou, E. Horton and M. Brian, Leading Players in Capitol Newspaper Story

"The Front Page" is biting, cynical, humorous and tense, with surprise situations that make even a hard-boiled reporter who has quit the game come back to it in order to land a scoop for a managing editor whom he hates like poison.

Pat O'Brien's place in the movies is seen in a series of his most surprising roles as John

Johnson, the star reporter who tries to quit reporting and settle down to a quiet married life, but can't because he is so clever his paper won't allow him to escape from the maelstrom of the front page."

Alfred Lunt is to be supported as Adolph Menjou in the role of the suave, lovable, but hard managing editor. Edward Everett

Horton takes the part of Bennington, the fussy, throat-spraying reporter of a highbrow paper.

Mary Brian has the role of the little girl who is going to marry a wild reporter and take him "away from it all."

And with it comes Ann Harding, the screen's most charming and dramatic actress, in the role of Isobel.

But that's not all. There is also Clive Brook as her lover, Conrad Nagel as her husband who could not forgive, and such eminent stars as Cecilia Loftus, better known perhaps as "Cissie," and Beryl Mercer in what is, without question, the greatest cast ever assembled in any talking picture.

Doctor Dick's Letter Box

TIM MATSON

Dear Doctor,

I'm on pins and needles! My wife has the figure of a harbor dredge, with a load of proportional boats. Soon after it is bound to happen. She talks about them, cries over them, and raves about them before sleep. She gazes longingly at them, through shop windows, for hours on end. Oh, Doctor, it's a terrible thought, but I can feel it coming on, and nothing human can prevent it! Perish the vision—the ridiculous, incongruous certainty of my voluminous spouse, cowering in the near future, inadequately crowned by one of those atrocious, lop-sided "gravy-boats"—an "Empress Eugenie" hat! My life savings are yours, if you can frustrate this climax!

Yours, dreading the future,

H. PINPOINT MORGAN.

I would be wiser to philosophically embalm myself, now, than run the gamut of despair, being restricted to death, for daring to meddle with so infamously a subject as feminine fashions.

Fashion to woman is as vital as an "able-to-put-your-head-through-in-a-hurry porthole" is to a transatlantic liner. Irrespective of her age, public displacement, deportment, or durability, a woman acquiesces without a murmur, to any misappropriations of fashion.

I firmly believe that if some of the amateur Haberdashers from the Island from the Island town could not be a success, unless topped by a pith helmet, rimmed with prunes, that the creation would be universally acclaimed as "ducky," "artistic," and "perfectly darling." So, what can you do? Forget about it, Morgan. Take your heating like a man—or join the Doukhobors, and put your worries at an end.

Yours, sewing on a button,

DOCTOR DICK.

The scores were made from close range. The Salmonbellies working a close combination to get in for the shot. Steve Beatty, rangy center, was the star of the visitors. He took part in most of the action and scored three goals. Haddie Stoddard. He connected for two of the three goals. Big Jim Burton and Pete Ella had their hands full in staying off the determined attacks of the home trio and for a time did well. But the pugnacious Burton, which made things easier for the Royals, who were quick to take advantage and rush in three goals.

The visitors were tied up so well that not one of their goals were really earned. Every one of them was shot from outside the defence, the first and third coming from long range through a sea of legs. The other one was a bouncing shot from long range.

The home field also worked to perfection, breaking away fast with Stoddard and Fraser doing most of the first game, so completely that they were practically passengers all the way. Wally Mercer was another defence boy who did his work well. Jim Gifford and Mackie did a lot of useful fielding.

The visitors came up tied up so well that not one of their goals were really earned. Every one of them was shot from outside the defence, the first and third coming from long range through a sea of legs. The other one was a bouncing shot from long range.

The home field also worked to perfection, breaking away fast with Stoddard and Fraser doing most of the first game, so completely that they were practically passengers all the way. Wally Mercer was another defence boy who did his work well. Jim Gifford and Mackie did a lot of useful fielding.

Hunting Season Opens

Hunters Prepare For Opening Day; Equipment Ready

Shotgun and Rifle Are Made Ready for Big Day in Woods—Need for Care and Knowledge in Selection of Equipment Is Obvious—Grouse, Bear and Deer in Season

SATURDAY, "The Opening Day," is an event which is eagerly awaited in many different homes throughout the Province. The hunter, whose circumstances force him to live in the city during the remainder of the year, thirsts for the joys of the hunting trip, no less for the untrammelled freedom it brings than for the thrill of a well-placed shot culminating a long stalk. To the small holder in the country, especially in the north of the Island, it gives an opportunity to get his own back on the "varmints" which have feasted nightly on his summer crops.

Rifles and shotguns are being taken down, the heavy oil and grease which has protected them throughout the balance of the year

A Personal Message From the Game Department

DON'T destroy fences or property of the farmer and always ask for permission to shoot over his property.

DON'T shoot unless you clearly see and are sure of what you are shooting at. It may be a doe, a cow, or a male.

DON'T go hunting until you are acquainted with the game laws.

DON'T shoot harmless wild life. Practice on crows, magpies and that like.

DON'T enter a boat or car with a loaded firearm.

DON'T discharge firearms from an automobile or other vehicle. It is dangerous and against the law.

LEAVE A CLEAN CAMP and a clean record. You may want to come back.

BE A SPORTSMAN—Respect the rights of others. Report violations of the "Game Act." "Organized district" under the "Game Act" means all that part of the Province south of the 53rd parallel of latitude. "Undivided districts" means any part of the Province north of the 53rd parallel of latitude.

LOADERS, FIREARMS—Any firearm having live ammunition in the magazine or breech is considered as being loaded under the "Game Act."

When the success of his hunt depends upon one more shot. The hats are compulsory, and while there hunting, it is a good idea to wear a hat. The British Columbia, yet it is a matter of common sense to equip oneself with some such provision. A red hunting cap easily acquired and gives a degree of protection that is essential.

COMPASS IS IMPORTANT—No more important item in the list of accessories is found than the compass. The old saying in the woods runs: "The man who claims he never be lost has not learned from his mother's apron strings." Being lost in strange country is an incident that may befall any hunter; the test of woodcraft is the ability to find oneself. It is the tyro who has never been far from home that is most likely to get lost.

THE HUNTER WHO CONFIDENTLY DEPENDS HIMSELF IMMUNE FROM THE RISKS OF BEING BUSHED. The old timer takes every precaution, including a good compass and a waterproof matchbox.

In these days when the woods are crowded with hunters, it is necessary to protect oneself against the all too fatal mistake of another's HATCHED DURING SHOW—At the time of the great Highland Show in Edinburgh, Scotland, this year, it was noticed that a thrush's nest had been built in the rafters of the stand in the above ground. The six nestlings were hatched and fed by the parent birds despite the noise and traffic preparatory to and during the show. The stand in which the nest had been built was permanent and had been visited from time to time by inspectors of the Scottish Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This month the fledglings left the nest.

and the seriousness with which they take one another's charges—but rarely does this sort of "stigma" cause more than a little mental pain, usually of short duration.

This is very different from the original usage of the word in the days of the ancients, when "stigma" designated a mark made with a pointed instrument or a red-hot iron, and which was frequently a brand impressed upon the body of a slave or criminal.

With this sort of thing was no longer practised, except on the ecclesiastical range, "stigma" became a purely figurative term, especially in politics and courts of law.

The word itself is derived from the Greek verb meaning "to brand."

Wife (arriving at husband's office) "Let me go," as I came up the stairs. Yes, dear, I was—er—just saying unexpectedly — Robert, I could stairs. That someone would have to go to swear I heard Miss Keys about out. Husband (with quick recovery) — the bank.
